In late August 1954, a ship passed Velikiy Mys (N 69-05, E 33-16) in Kola Inlet, strong magnetic disturbances were noted which affected the ship's compass. The Soviet pilot who was aboard attempted to minimize the importance of the disturbances indicating they were caused by electrical experiments. The compass was useless until corrected.